CHILD SUPPORT IN PHILADELPHIA COUNTY

What is Child Support?

A child support order is a written order signed by a judge stating a specific amount of money to be paid at specific times for the care of a child. It may also include information about who is responsible for health insurance for the child. If you receive public assistance benefits, you may be required to file for child support. See the brochure *Domestic Violence and TANF Support Requirements.

Who may file for Child Support in Philadelphia?

In order to obtain child support, you must show that the child lives primarily with you. This requirement is called standing. You do not need a custody order to file for support.

You must also show that the Philadelphia court is the proper court to hear your case. This requirement is called jurisdiction. You may show jurisdiction in one of two ways: 1) you live in Philadelphia; or 2) the person from whom you are seeking child support lives or regularly works in Philadelphia.

What happens after I file?

You and the person from whom you are seeking support (the opposing party) will be sent a Notice to Appear in Court on a specific date for a pre-trial conference with a Hearing Officer.

How is the amount of support decided?

State regulations provide a formula, known as the "Support Guidelines," that courts use to calculate the amount of support to be paid. These guidelines instruct courts to look at the combined income of the mother and father and the number of children for whom support is sought. The goal is to ensure that each child receives the same amount of support that they would if the parents lived together. Once that amount is determined, the parties' individual incomes are compared to the Guideline amount to determine the percentage of support for which each party is responsible.

What is income for the purpose of determining child support?

In general, when determining income for the Guidelines, the Court looks at the actual income of a party as well as that party's earning capacity (potential to earn money based on work experience and education). The Court will also consider whether the person who must pay support is also paying child support for other children. Public benefits, such as TANF or SSI, are not considered income for the purposes of the Guidelines.

What should I bring to the pre-trial conference?

You should bring the original and 2 copies of:

- proof of your income for the last six months;
- last year's tax return;
- a completed income and expense report (included with your Notice to Appear).

What happens at the pre-trial conference?

If paternity has not been established, the Hearing Officer will ask for an acknowledgment of paternity or order genetic testing, as appropriate. Once paternity has been established, the Hearing Officer will examine income information from both parties and set the amount of support to be paid based on the support guidelines. If the parties agree to the amount of support, it becomes an Order of the Court and is signed by a Judge. If the parties do not agree, the Guideline amount becomes a Temporary Order and the case is referred to a Support Master for a hearing.

What happens at the Support Master's Hearing?

At this hearing, the parties will have a chance to explain why they agree or disagree with the amount of support set by the Hearing Officer. The Support Guidelines are assumed to be correct. Therefore, if you disagree with the amount of support, you must show a reason why they are not correct such as: special circumstances of the child, earning capacity not met, additional income available. The Master will file a report regarding his/her decision along with a proposed order. If there are no objections, the Master's report becomes final.

What if I disagree with the Order?

- If you do not agree with the master's proposed support order, you may file exceptions within 20 days after you receive the written recommendation. In your exceptions, you must explain in writing why you think the master's proposal is wrong.

This brochure is meant to give you general information and not legal advice.

The exceptions must be filed in person or received by mail within the 20 days and will not be accepted by fax. After the exceptions are filed, there will be a hearing before a judge. You will need to explain to the judge what the master did wrong. The judge will issue a final order.

- If you disagree with the judge's order, you may file an appeal in Superior Court within 30 days of the date of the court order. Appeals are very complicated. You may want to talk to an attorney if you decide to appeal to Superior Court.

How do I get Child Support once I have an Order?

Child Support payments are collected and enforced by the State through PASCDU. This agency receives payments from the people who owe support and then distributes these payments to you. Most new child support orders require wage attachment unless a reason can be shown why wage attachment should not be done.

If you are having problems with your Child Support, you can go to the Establishment and Enforcement office of Family Court located at 1501 Arch Street, 12th Floor.

If you have a support order and the other party is not obeying the order, you can file a contempt petition. There is no charge for a contempt petition.

What if I want to change my Order?

Orders are reviewed automatically once every 3 years. You may, however, request a review before that time if your circumstances have changed. If you wish to request a review or change the order, you must file a support modification petition.

The process for modifying support is similar to the initial filing. At the hearing on the modification, you must show that there has been a significant change in circumstances and that the change was not voluntary.
